

Polish-Hungarian cultural relations were manifested in different ways in many spheres of social and cultural life. Very interesting thought often unevaluated example was a sacred art, in which the aesthetic function goes far beyond the context of religion and becomes a reflection of a common historical experience. The paper deals with the stained glass windows in the Polish Church funded in 1930 in Budapest as the symbol Polish-Hungarian brotherhood.

ISSN: 1733-165X